

INFLUENZA (FLU)

Public Service Announcement for 2004-05 Flu Season: Are you concerned that you won't be able to get a flu shot this year?

Dr. Julie Gerberding:

Hello, I'm Dr. Julie Gerberding, director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Are you concerned that you won't be able to get a flu shot this year? Well I want you to know that over the next several weeks millions of doses of vaccine will get to communities across America. So please don't rush out right now and stand in line. Instead, you can count on your public health officials to let you know when vaccine will be available in your community. By working together we can successfully fight the flu this season. If you're healthy and you don't need vaccine, please step aside and give others a shot.

New voice:

For more information, go the Web at www.cdc.gov/flu.

This public health message is brought to you by the Ad Council, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, and the CDC.